

Fire Insurance Map Inventory of Colorado

Introduction

Fire insurance maps share a sole purpose – to provide a risk assessment for real property before issuing fire insurance on that property – and this purpose is reflected in the often unique information shown on them. While most people associate fire insurance maps in Colorado with the Sanborn Map Company, this inventory includes any fire insurance maps produced for cities and towns in the state. A lot of work went into creating Sanborn maps, and so these maps were expensive to subscribe to for insurance agents. As these agents began to seek more affordable ways to assess risk in the 1920s and 1930s, others tried their hand at the map-making task. Mountain States Inspection Bureau was one of the more prolific, though independent agents created some maps as well. While lacking the intense level of detail baked into Sanborn maps, these third-party products apparently captured sufficient information to reasonably calculate risk of fire damage.

Map Orientation

To ensure that sheets stay roughly the same size, many maps are oriented with north somewhere besides 'up'. Watch for the compass rose on each map to avoid disorientation, knowing that it could change from one sheet to the next.

"Paste-overs"

Prior to 1920, Sanborn's method of updating maps was to publish either new sheets, or entirely new map sets for a city or town. After 1920 the company began issuing new map content printed on thick material with adhesive backing, with the linework matching the existing map but with information on new construction. These regular updates were received by the insurance agent as a subscription service from Sanborn. The year the paste-overs ceased to be added to the map or map set, whether due to a new map or map set being issued, or the insurance agent canceling their subscription, is effectively the final date of the map.

Dating the Update

Perhaps the most daunting challenge is dating Sanborn paste-overs. Newly published Sanborn sheets typically have a month and a year, or at least a year, printed on the sheet. For sheets with paste-overs, there might be an index sheet with new materials, but not always. However, sometimes the maps will include update notices.

In 1961, the Library of Congress (LC) decided to dispose of its second copyright-deposit copy of Sanborn maps, so it offered one copy of each state's Sanborn maps to a single institution in each of the states as part of their Gift & Exchange program. In Colorado, LC offered the University of Colorado at Boulder (CU-Boulder) library the option to accept this large map set. Like LC's, the maps in this set are original, non-updated maps, with approximately 70% of them now digitized by CU-Boulder. Maps at other institutions are generally working copies from insurance agencies. Being 'working copies' they almost universally have some level of updating and paste-overs added over time. The updating process for fire insurance maps intentionally obscures and sometimes destroys the original content of the underlying map.

Notes on the major institutional collections listed in this inventory:

- Library of Congress (LC): As the copyrighting agency in the United States, the Library of Congress long required a mandatory deposit of two copies for any intellectual property (books, music, etc.) for which copyright is requested. Sanborn Map Company deposited the required copies with LC. These are not updated, and are in their original form. They have since digitized all Sanborn maps that are in the public domain as of 2022. Their Sanborn aids are highly recommended if you'd like to maximize the amount of information you can find on the maps.
- University of Colorado (Boulder): As the selected second-copy donation institution, the maps at CU-Boulder are generally identical to the copies at LC. Before LC began digitizing its maps, the university digitized many of its own. While technically different copies, their scans will look similar to those at LC. CU-Boulder offers the most convenient place for Coloradans to see most Colorado Sanborn maps in person in their original print form.
- Denver Public Library: Most of the fire insurance maps at Denver Public Library were received from the Colorado Real Estate Insurance Company as a donation. This set is a combination of updated Sanborn maps and hand-drawn maps from independent insurance agents in addition to the Mountain States Inspection Bureau. In many cases, the only fire insurance maps available for many small towns fall into this latter category. In most cases, Denver Public Library carries only a single iteration of fire insurance maps coverage for any particular town. The notable exception is Denver, for which the library carries multiple editions and updates from 1887 into the 1970s. DPL carries few if any non-updated fire insurance maps from the time when updates were provided.

Scope

This geographical survey of fire insurance maps of Colorado is limited in scope to:

- Geographic coverage for Colorado locations only, including almost 300 cities, towns, and other settlements
- Only holding institutions physically located in Colorado, and the Library of Congress, are listed in the inventory
- Only original print (non-photocopy) and digital versions are listed in the inventory

Some libraries carry Sanborn maps on a 1983 microfilm dating from a 1981 inventory by LC. These are quite valuable to have and may be the only locally available version in your area. A list of institutions known to hold the microfilm is given later in this preface.

Most of the maps in this inventory were produced by Sanborn Map Company, sometimes known as the Sanborn-Perris Map Company.

As the Copyright Depository agency for the United States, the Library of Congress received original, pre-updated, maps from Sanborn. Local libraries tend to have updated office-copy maps received from local insurance agencies over the decades. This variation in content, while making inventories and descriptions complicated, also provides improved coverage over more time periods for the same area, especially when the date of the most recent update can be determined. Whether or not this update date is available forms part of this inventory.

Local insurance organizations and companies produced maps for Colorado as well, and the source is noted where available. Note that these maps were often not nearly as detailed or polished as Sanborn's editions, though were much more affordable. When you see a map not produced by Sanborn, be aware that the quality of the map will generally not be nearly as high nor will the coverage of the town be as complete.

On the plus side, many Colorado towns were never mapped by Sanborn, so these locally produced maps provide a cartographic resource for some towns that would not otherwise be available.

Organization of the Inventory

The inventory is listed by name of City, and then by date of publication. A row is created for each copy of a map at each institution since no two Sanborn maps are the same once updates begin to be applied. Each insurance agent would make annotations, whether by hand or by adding paste-overs, on their office's copy. When a digital copy is available, the URL for digital images from that institution is linked using the name of the holding institution.

Notes on the Inventory's Data Fields

Field	Definition	Example
City	Name of primary incorporated or unincorporated populated place shown on map. Any populated place that has fire insurance coverage should have an entry. If the row is light grey, this means that coverage for that town is elsewhere, and to check the notes. For Denver, colored rows indicate different base editions and their many iterations.	Dillon
Base year	Year map edition was first published, prior to any updates	1886
Update	Year of latest update to the base year for the map the holding institution owns	1932
Creator	Name of company, organization, or person that created the map. In some cases the creator isn't identified.	Sanborn Map Company
Sheets	Where known, this is the number of map sections issued to cover the City listed. The terms 'pages' and 'sheets' are sometimes used interchangeably, but this field refers specifically to the number of numbered map sections issued. In some cases, a single numbered "sheet" was issued as a 'double-wide' map section.	7 (meaning map is complete in 7 sections)
Institution	Name of the library, museum, or university that holds an original print copy of the map. If the library also hosts digital images made from their	Denver Public Library or insurance maps, the name of the institution will contain a link to the digital version.	CU-Boulder

Notes	Additional information on that institution's specific copy, oddities surrounding the map itself, etc.	Color. See under Cripple Creek, sh.25 [in this case, the town listed, Elkton, was not published on its own, but rather can be found by looking at the Cripple Creek maps, sheet 25, for that year]

Geographic Coverage for Cities and Towns

The easiest way to locate coverage for a town is to look under its name, then follow any links or cross-references you find there. If the town you seek is not listed, then there may not be any fire insurance mapping for that area.

Cities and towns vary widely in size, and Colorado in the late 19th century could be chaotic with mining towns built, exploding in population, and then abandoned in the span of just a few years. Sometimes a 'City' published by Sanborn includes smaller nearby settlements. If adjacent, they might appear simply as a special notation on a particular map section. But if a settlement is in the next valley over, they might get an entire sheet or part of a sheet ('inset') dedicated to that area. These extra areas are listed in the Notes field in this inventory, with a special entry under the name of the settlements elsewhere in the inventory to provide additional access.

While not common, sometimes a town will merely be part of the coverage for a larger City one year, only to get a dedicated Sanborn map release all to itself a few years later. And vice versa, especially when a town's mine played out and only a relatively few people remained. These changes are noted under each town where this occurred.

The task of locating the right map volume for Denver was made much easier when the Library of Congress added the city to their Sanborn Atlas Volume Finder tool in early 2023.

Completeness

While this inventory is intended to be as complete as possible within the scope listed above, it is undoubtedly not complete. Some other resources to check include:

- Phil Hoehn's union list of Colorado fire insurance maps (2014)
 - With assistance from Bill Hunt and Evelyn L. Woodruff. Colorado section enhanced by Laura Wright (CU-Boulder)
- OCLC's Worldcat to search for specific maps. You may need to experiment trying different searches using keywords like 'fire insurance', 'sanborn', and a particular town.
- Union list of Sanborn fire insurance maps held by institutions in the United States and Canada, by Phil Hoehn, 1976-1977. While the list is dated, given how few fire insurance maps were published after this compilation it still holds value. Confirm with the holding institution that they still own the map.
 - Volume 1 (Alabama to Missouri) WAML Occasional papers, no.2
 - Volume 2 (Montana to Wyoming, Canada, Mexico) WAML Occasional papers, no.3
- ProQuest's Digital Sanborn Maps, 1867-1970. Check with your local library to see if you have access to this database. These are black-and-white editions based on the Library of Congress holdings.

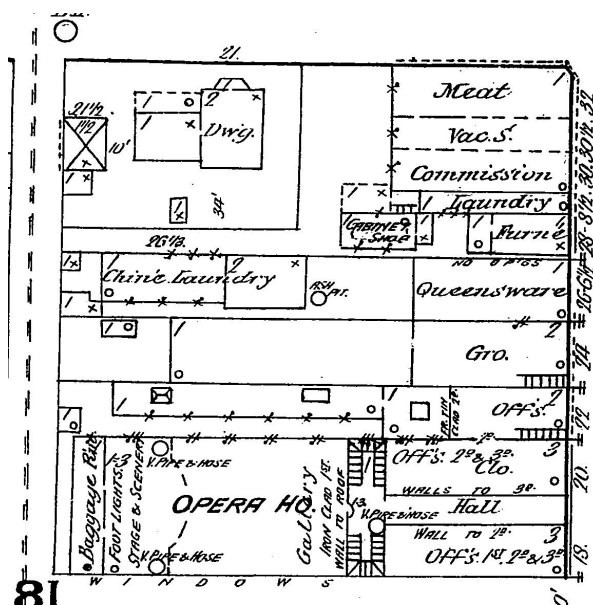

Digital Copies

As part of a multi-year project, the Library of Congress digitized thousands of its vast Sanborn map collection. In recognition of U.S. copyright law and their applicability to Sanborn maps, they do not digitize maps until they pass into public domain. Where a digital copy of a particular map or map set is available a link is added to the holding institution's name.

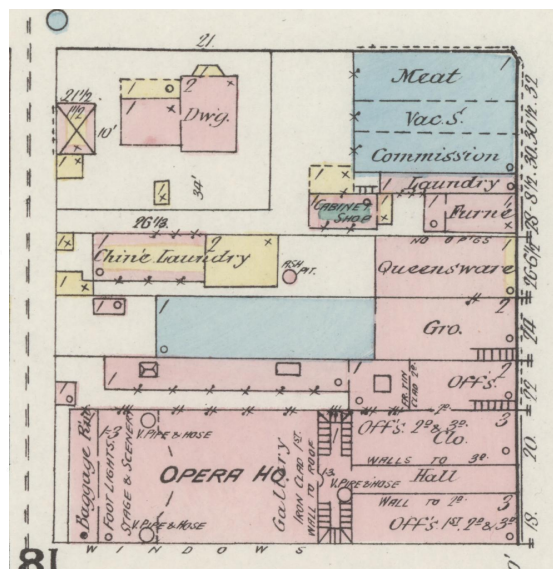

Microfilm

When a digital version isn't available, and a printed copy is not in your area, your local library may still hold the microfilm version. Note that both the ProQuest database and microfilm (from which the database is derived) will not contain the color image, and will be at a lower resolution, but will still show much information. The online database images were created from the 1983 microfilm and both include years not currently online.

Below is an example of a block in Colorado Springs from 1888 for comparison.
