Editor's Introduction to the 1887 Denver Directory

Information Needed to Effectively Use this Reference Set

Do not assume that if you have used the 1893 Denver Directory that the rules are the same.

City directories contain a wealth of information which is statistical, biographical and sociological, collected at a time that such data was not generally analyzed. With some imagination, a city directory can be considered a data base. The problem is that there is no way to access this information except by name. If you don't know the name you are out of luck. What if you want to know who lived next door? What if you want to know who worked for a given company? What if you want some information about who else lived at the same address? Were there servants? Did the person share his residence with other people? If so who? This reference set allows access to all of this material, or at least what of it was collected in the original directory. In order to use it well, however, the researcher must understand how it was created. The alphabetical listing of the directory, (Volume I) is considered to be the original volume. The other volumes are considered as derivative volumes, a distinction which is important. In *The 1893 Denver Directory*¹ all volumes are derivative volumes, derived from the data which had been manually entered into a database.

This data base has been created by electronically scanning an original 1887 Denver Directory provided by the Western History Collection of the Denver Public Library. To use computer lexicon, each listing in the Directory is considered to be a "record." The data were then corrected by hand, one record at a time, by comparing the data on the screen with the original directory. Other corrections were made as errors were encountered. A sampling of the business directory at the back of the original volume suggested that essentially all entries also appeared in one form or another in the main directory, so these entries were not added to the data base. This is a difference between these data and those published previously for 1893. The original order of listings was preserved in the Alphabetical listing, another difference between these data and those previously published for 1893. Data elements from each record were then split into individual data "fields" and then processed. The computer was instructed to change all listings in upper case letters to a standard upper case for the first letter and lower case for subsequent letters. While this eliminated some of the problems caused by all upper case listings, it added some additional problems with names with an upper case letter within the name, such as MacDonald, which is now translated to Macdonald or McNany which now reads Mcnany (If you need to know if it is Macdonald or MacDonald, consult the alphabetical listing and you will see what the editors in 1887 thought was correct). The process of working with the data identified more errors which were then corrected. An attempt was made to correct inconsistencies and to make abbreviations and spellings consistent. When, in the course of this process, something peculiar was identified and was confirmed in the original volume it was marked with "[sic]." Thus there is a "Symes blk" and a "Smyes blk [sic]." Maybe they are the same and maybe they are not. Names, names of companies, street names and spellings and abbreviations generally appear in the alphabetical volume, Volume I, as they did in the original. Changes were made in the derivative volumes. Entries in the derivative volumes are truncated as necessary. Bernard Speier's occupation is "painter, paper hanger, wall paper, window glass and p...." That's enough of an occupation for anyone. If you need to know the rest consult Volume I.

There is no question that the best access to these data is by the use of a computer. The computer adds additional complexity, however. To begin with the original directory is not really a data base. Each listing in the directory can be considered a "record." Each record is delimited by a period, or at least the vast majority are. Some are not and then appear merged with the next record. Hopefully all of these run-ons have been corrected. Data elements in each entry or "record" are not consistent. The number of data elements or "fields" in each record is not the same, although fortunately the data elements of each record are usually in the same order. There are names without addresses, for example. There are also names with more than one address. Sometimes occupation is listed and sometimes it is not. Some addresses in Highlands are identified as being in Highlands and some are not. Residents of other towns such as North Denver, Elyria, Berkeley, and others not incorporated into Denver by 1887 may or may not be listed at all. Consistency is important to computers and variations in spelling or use of inconsistent abbreviations make the data appear in, perhaps, unexpected places, depending on the spelling. Entries for "L'Imperial Hotel," "The L'Imperial Hotel," "Hotel L'Imperial" and "Imperial Hotel," for example, will all appear in different locations when sorted by the computer. There is no consistency in street names. Does "Eighteenth" mean "Eighteenth Ave" or "Eighteenth Street." Sometimes it is specified and sometimes it is not clear. When obvious problems were identified that were not easily interpreted, street names were left as in the original. Consistency corrections have been made in the derivative data bases, but not in the alphabetical listing. In editing this data base we have tried to make all of the data elements fit, but there will always be information in the first volume not in subsequent volumes. Errors in the data, both in the original directory and additional errors which we have undoubtedly contributed in spite of our best efforts, complicate things further.

All information in the derivative volumes of this edition of the directory are sorted by the computer. The contents of the "name" field, for example, is considered by the computer to be one long word. That means that all numbers, symbols, letters, and even blank spaces have a defined place in the computer's alphabet. Thus, "Smith, James", is different than "Smith James" (both comma and space are considered characters in the long word). "Smith, james" is different from both (to a computer the small case letter is different than the upper case letter). If by accident there is a space before the name, it will appear in an entirely different location. The data is sorted in accord with the ASCII Character Table. The ASCII "alphabet", if you will, is: [blank space] ! " # $ % & ' () * + , - . / 0 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 : ; < = > ? @ A B C D E F G H I J K L M N O P Q R S T U V W X Y Z [\ ^ _ ` a b c d e f g h i j k l m n o p q r s t u v w x y z then foreign and graphic symbols. The result of this alphabet is that entries are not in the same order as they appeared in the original directory. Most confusing to people not used to computers is the fact that all capital letters come before any small letters. For this reason "Smith, Thomas" comes before "Smith, allen" in the ASCII alphabet. Street numbers are bigger problem, as they are not in strict numeric format. How do you arrange 425; 1,356; 5 to 6; and 2123-25 in numeric order. You don't. You arrange them in alpha order. (1,356; 2123-25; 425; 5 to 6). Street numbers are sorted as though they were words rather than numbers. Thus 1006 comes before 101.

There are 3 volumes in this reference set:

Volume I: The Denver Directory of 1887 Arranged Alphabetically

Volume II: The Denver Directory of 1887 Arranged by Address

Volume III: Statistical Abstract of Denver 1887

Volume I: The Denver Directory of 1887 Arranged Alphabetically

All volumes of this edition of directory are important. Volume I: The Denver Directory of 1887 Arranged Alphabetically is a reproduction of the original directory and should be considered the most accurate and complete listing of any record. We have made the attempt to reproduce the data exactly, and have even copied some obvious mistakes. Since the data was obtained by scanning and not by manual entry, as was the case with the 1893 Directory, we have produced the entire volume, absent advertising. The serious researcher should confirm information from the derivative volumes in Volume I, as there might be additional information, or the researcher might not agree with some of the changes made in the information in the name of error correction or consistency. Note that there are additional listings in a section of the book for entries received too late for incorporation into the text and these entries have not been added to the text. Again, this is a departure from the precedent established in the 1893 Directory, and it was done to preserve the original order in the alphabetical volume.

Volume II: The Denver Directory of 1887 Arranged by Address

In contrast to Volume I, Volume II contains significant editorial changes. This volume is intended to simply give a name for each listed address so that researchers may refer to the first volume of the directory for more information. Occupation is also listed as sociologic information and is provided by the juxtaposition of people of various occupations in the same or similar address. We began the process by merging all addresses. If a name was followed by three addresses, as sometimes happened, this entry was converted into three entries, one for each address. Not all of the descriptive characters were stripped from in front of the address as they were in the 1893 Directory. Modifiers such as "bds., r." were stripped. Modifiers such as "es., ws., n., cor." were considered part of the address. All descriptive material, such as occupation, type of business and the like was stripped. Street names were then separated from address numbers. Attempts were made to improve consistency of the data. Numeric street names were spelled out, and filters were applied to make the data more consistent. For example, a filter was applied that converted "Av", "ave", "av", "avs" all to "av". Punctuation, all inconsistent in the original directory, was removed. The file was then sorted first according to street name and then according to number. Revisions were made to the data either by computer or by hand to make the data more consistent. In the case of doubt, either no corrections were made or the corrected entry was indicated by "[?]" . The result is that the serious researcher must consider possible alternative spellings and address notations. A [sic] in an entry means that the editors identified the entry as strange in some way and rechecked and found it correct. We have undoubtedly introduced some additional errors in our attempts to correct errors and to make the data more consistent.

The numbering system for street addresses changed in 1887. As far as the editors know there is no complete cross reference between the old address and the new address, although publication of this directory when cross referenced with the one for 1886 soon to be published, will be helpful. For example, the architect William Lang lived at 587 Champa in 1886, along with E Cinnamon, Miss Laura Cinnamon, and S.A. Doll's meat market among others. In 1887 Lang had moved, but the Cinnamonds and the meat market had not. They were listed at 2203 and 2205 Champa respectively. Also in 1886 the druggist, William Arnold lived at 587 Champa, cor. 22d. Therefore the current street address for the Langs' residence in 1886 would be 2203 Champa. S. A. Doll lived at 676 Stout in 1886 which became 2317 Stout in 1887. Note also that many Denver street names have changed between then and now and the editors have made no attempt to correct for this. See Goodstein's book for additional information².

Volume III: Statistical Abstract of Denver 1887

This volume contains listings of the data by occupation, race, gender and employer. It will be of interest to those interested in sociologic studies of Denver. This list of occupations is dated, of course. a "Modiste" for example is someone who deals in fine ladies garments and hats. The qualifications for listing married women, or for that matter any women, independently is not immediately clear. Why colored people were listed and other ethnic groups were not separately identified is not clear, but "colored" was an identifiable data element so we used it in our tabulations.

These volumes have been prepared for use by historical researchers, assuming that computers are inconvenient for them. It is clear from the above discussion, however, that the best way to study this data base is by computer. For this reason, these data are available from Canzona Publications, 2253 Downing Street, Denver, Colorado 80205 as a delimited ASCII file readable into most database programs. Significant computer resources are required to manipulate this data.

Finally, we will probably be releasing editions of this historically significant data base for years to come. Although we do not promise to make corrections, we would like to have any obvious errors reported to us along with suggestions as to how the data could be looked at in new and meaningful ways. Communicate with us by email at cbrantigan@qwest.net, or by snail mail at 2253 Downing St, Denver, Colorado 80205.

INTRODUCTORY. DENVER DIRECTORY OFFICE, APRIL, 1887.

The present issue of the Denver City Directory makes its appearance somewhat later than usual on account of the renumbering of the City, and the many changes that have been made in the names of streets during the time we were collecting the information. None can regret the delay, however, more than our selves, for, coming as it did just at the time of making the canvass, it has not only increased our labor, but has also added many hundred dollars to the expense of this publication.

We know that our citizens are anxiously awaiting the delivery of this edition, and we regret that the improvements made in the change of streets and re-numbering should be made at such a time as would cause us in any way to disappoint or inconvenience our patrons. We feel, however, that they will appreciate our effort to incorporate in this issue all the recent changes that have been made, and, should there be any discrepancy in the numbers given, we ask the public to consider the difficulties under which we have labored and consequently overlook small errors which may occur in that way.

The changes, so far as they have been made, merit our hearty endorsement and we believe the general public will find them a great convenience. We will here express our sincere thanks to the City Engineer and his associates in office for the many courtesies extended to us in securing the changes as soon as they were made.

We are pleased to note the rapid strides we are making in growth, both in population and in the building up of a city whose beauty, commercial importance and healthful climate is acknowledged throughout the entire length and breadth of our continent. The increase in the Directory information of this volume over its predecessor gives abundant and substantial evidence of the remarkable growth of our young and enterprising city, and a stroll or drive through our streets in any direction will convince all that the elegant buildings going up in all sections speak of our future in the most flattering terms.

It has been our desire to place this publication in the front rank of its class, and if experience, labor and money can accomplish this, we do not fear to place this edition before a generous public, and leave them to decide how well we have succeeded.....C & B.

N. B. Instead of multiplying the total number of names in the Directory, as is generally done to estimate the population, we will deduct 5 per cent. for such as do not represent individual names, taking 3 as a multiple, which is smaller than used in many cities, we have the following result, our present population $27,695 - 1,384 = 26,311$; $26,311 \times 3 = 78,933$.

STREET AND AVENUE GUIDE EXPLANATION.

By the decimal system of numbering now adopted one hundred numbers are assigned to each square, giving one number to each twelve and one-half feet, or two numbers to each lot of twenty-five feet, beginning at the Platte river on the west increasing northeasterly on Larimer and all streets running, parallel.

Streets crossing Larimer are numbered from Broadway increasing northwesterly. On Broadway and on all streets running parallel the numbers increase northward, beginning with 100 at First avenue (formerly Lake avenue). Streets and avenues crossing Broadway are numbered east and west from said street, adding the letter W, to that part of the street or avenue west of Broadway, as follows . Twelfth avenue W., would apply to that part of Twelfth avcune west of Broadway.

For convenience in locating the streets and avenues of the city, we have used the most prominent ones, and the Platte river as a commencement or dividing point. For instance, Broadway, Downing and Fifteenth avenues, Pierpout street and the Platte river in East Denver, and the Boulevard, Gallup, Highland, Fairview and Ashland avenues in the northwest.
