Naturalization is the process through which a foreign-born person becomes a citizen of the United States and is eligible to vote. Naturalization records are among the most valued records for family historians due to what they represent. These records can be a valuable source of information regarding an immigrant's place of origin, his or her original name, former residence, and date of arrival in the new country. Naturalization was a voluntary act and was not required. Of the foreign-born persons listed on the 1890 through 1930 censuses, 25 percent had not become naturalized or filed their "first papers". The 1900 and later census reflect whether an individual was naturalized.

These records can be difficult to locate and understand. Sometimes ship passenger lists are missing, or immigrants are difficult to locate or recognize on the arrival lists. The spelling of foreign names often varied. In many cases, names were also anglicized by either the court clerk or the immigrant. Since court clerks often spelled names the way they sounded, misspellings frequently occurred. Pre1906 naturalization records in many cases are in a chaotic condition, many lost and destroyed. However, naturalizations that took place after 1906 are not difficult to find and, with them, you can fully identify the immigrant and the family. There are two distinct groups of naturalization records: those that were created before September 27, 1906, and those that came afterwards. After 1906 a standard form was used and the records had to be indexed by the courts.

In some states such as Nebraska and Colorado, naturalization card indexes were prepared in the 1930's and 1940's as a WPA project. These original indexes are kept by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service branch offices, but some state and local archives and libraries may have film copies. The first step is to determine if the ancestor was really naturalized. Usually, 1900 and later censuses can tell you the answer. The 1900 through 1930 censuses ask if a person is naturalized and 1920 further asks the year of naturalization. Indirectly, the 1820 and 1830 census provide a clue with the question "number of foreigners in each household not naturalized".

Some immigrants became citizens for more materialistic reasons, such as the right to acquire free land through homesteading. Did your immigrant ancestor receive Federal land? If so, he or she was a citizen. Under the Homestead Act of 1862 and the Donation Land Act of 1850 (California, Oregon, and Washington), applicants had to be citizens to receive federal land. A copy of the naturalization papers is included in their Land Case File.

The U.S. Naturalization Act of May 16, 1790, established the basic procedure for naturalization through the 19th century. Naturalizations in Colorado commonly took place between 1876 - 1913 in the county courts, state judicial districts, U.S. federal district courts, or sometimes even criminal courts. Today there are 22 state judicial district courts in Colorado covering Colorado's sixty-four counties. Prior to the 1950s, the only U.S. Federal District courts that existed were in Denver and Pueblo. The courts were of all types, ranging from a U.S. District Court or a Territorial Court to a local police court. Prior to 1906 each court had its own methods and rules regarding naturalization procedures. Some were far less demanding than others. It didn't take early immigrants long to learn this, and they flocked to the courts that made the naturalization rules the most lenient. However, most people went to the court most convenient to them, usually a county court or U.S. district court.

While this function became primarily a federal responsibility after 1906, a few state and local courts continued to process naturalizations after 1913. Any court having a common law jurisdiction and possessing a clerk and a seal could naturalize foreigners provided they met the federal requirements for citizenship. The courts have generally retained the documents relating to naturalization. Some courts kept a naturalization record separate from the other records; other courts included the naturalization record in the regular minutes of the court. Occasionally local courts have transferred their records to a state repository or perhaps to U.S. federal court. The Colorado State Archives has only naturalizations for the U.S. District Court filings which are available on National Archives microfilm.

The Colorado State Archives has naturalizations records for many of the counties in Colorado. The main records series are the Declarations of Intention and Final Documents (which may include Certificate of Naturalization Stub books), Petitions Granted or Denied (sometimes called Judge's Orders), Repatriations, and Transfer Petitions. Although a state-wide naturalization index does not yet exist, many county and state district indexes are filed at the State Archives for use by researchers.

In general, most pre-1906 naturalization records provide the bare minimum of information: the name of applicant, address, country of prior origin, possibly his occupation and name and address of the witness. There is a great variation among the counties concerning the kind of information that can be obtained from the naturalization records. Depending on the time period and the county in which the papers were filed, different naturalization forms were used to record information. For instance, while Pueblo County District Court used a Declaration of Intention form in 1908 that was very detailed, Arapahoe County Court (City of Denver) used a form that had much less information on it. As part of their Final Petition records, some counties included a copy of the Declaration of Intention (no matter where it was filed), the Certificate of Arrival, and a very detailed Petition that may have included a photograph of the person applying for citizenship. Certificates of Arrival are of interest because they give the name the individual immigrated under, port of entry, date and manner of arrival (ship's name, automobile, train, etc. Other Final Records included much less information depending on the county and time period.

Sometimes the immigrant filed in one court, but completed the process in an entirely different location and state, so the declaration of intention may be in one place and the petition in another. This can make locating naturalization records difficult. Also, not all immigrants completed the process.

Prior to 1922 women who married acquired their husband's nationality automatically upon marriage. Until 1922, wives were sometimes listed on their husband's naturalization records. After that, you find separate records for married women because the Married Women's Act passed by Congress in September, 1922 gave all women a nationality of their own.

Persons under the age of twenty-one could not be naturalized. However, applicants who arrived in the United States as minors and resided in the U.S. during the full term of five years, including three years previous to his arrival at the age of twenty-one years, could file Minor's papers and were not required to file a separate Declaration of Intent.

The important papers to a genealogist are Declaration of Intent and the Petition for Naturalization, as these usually contain the most personal information about the applicant.

Declaration of Intention - First Papers:

A Declaration of Intent declares the petitioner's intent to become a citizen of the United States and renounces his allegiance to this former sovereignty. He was required to present himself in court, with witnesses, to fill out a petition for citizenship, take an oath of allegiance, and prove he met the residency requirement.

Prior to 1952, a two-step process was required before an immigrant could become a U.S. citizen. Filing a Declaration of Intention was the first step. Sometimes referred to as the "first papers," The Declaration of Intention could be filed any time after the immigrant arrived. These papers were normally completed soon after arrival in the U.S. Certain groups, such as women were exempt in early years until 1922. This also meant that an alien woman who married a U.S. citizen automatically became a citizen. (Conversely, an American woman who married an alien lost her US. Citizenship, even if she never left the United States.) After 1906, women aged 21 years could become citizens, and wives no longer became citizens upon the husband's naturalization. Until 1940, children under the age of twenty-one automatically became naturalized citizens upon the naturalization of their father. Because of these exemptions, names and biographical information about wives and children are rarely included in declarations or petitions filed before September, 1906. After 1862, those who were honorably discharged from the U.S. Army were excused from this first step in the naturalization process (added for the Navy & Marine Corps in 1894). Persons naturalized based upon citizenship of another or upon the service the applicant performed are referred to as derivative citizens as opposed to naturalized citizens. In 1952, a Declaration of Intent was no longer required for anyone, although some immigrants filed them.

While the content found on the Declaration of Intention varies dramatically by time period, location and court, pre-1906 declarations rarely contain much in the way of biographical information. Post-1906 declarations are more useful to genealogists, however, generally containing the following information: name, address, occupation, birthplace, nationality, country from which emigrated, birth date or age, personal description (age, height, weight, race), date of intention, marital status, last foreign residence, a statement of the petitioner's intent to become a citizen of the United States and a renunciation of allegiance to any foreign power and the name of the foreign ruler, renounce any foreign title or order of nobility, port of entry, name of ship, date of entry, date of document, number of children; name, address and occupation of the witnesses who attested to the applicant's residency and good character, and signature of the clerk of the court. A separate Certificate of Arrival giving details of arrival was usually required for arrivals after 1906. The declaration of intention filed after the late 1920s also include the name of the applicant's spouse and name, date and place of birth, and residence of their children. If the applicant used a different name at the port of entry, this name is also reflected in the record. From 1929 to 1941, the Declaration of Intention also asked for the spouse's name, marriage date and place, and birth information plus names, dates, and places of birth and residence of each child. Many of the 1930s and later declarations of intentions include a photo of the applicant with males usually dressed in a suit coat and tie. Most of the applicants were males.

Petition for Naturalization - Second or Final Papers:

Two years after filing his Declaration of Intent, the petitioner could petition the court for his final papers assuming he had fulfilled his residency requirements. Naturalization petitions and oaths were formal applications submitted to the court by individuals who had met the residency requirements (generally 5 years, though this varied by time period), who had declared their intention to become citizens (filed first papers), and possessed a good moral character. The petition then became the subject of an investigation and hearing before a judge; if the judge found the findings favorable, the judge would issue an order of admission to citizenship and grant the applicant a certificate of citizenship. As with the Declarations of Intention, the information they contain varies dramatically from one court to another. Most petitions created before 1906 offer little in terms of personal information. After 1906, petitions contain generally the same information as the Declaration of Intention, with additional detail on spouses (name, place of residency, marriage date and place, and birth information) and children: names, dates, and places of birth and residence of each child. A copy of the Declaration of Intent and certificate of arrival often were attached to the petition.

Final papers show the name of the county and the court where the petition was filed; the court term; the names of the petitioner, presiding judge and court clerk; the petitioner's nationality; the date of filing of the Declaration of Intent, a statement of the petitioner's intent to become a citizen of the United States and a renunciation of allegiance to any foreign power; a request to be admitted as a citizen of the U.S; the date of filing; and the signatures of the petitioner and court clerk.

Naturalization Final Oath:

Final Oaths show the name of the county and the court where the final oath was granted; the court term; the name of the person becoming naturalized; the term of residence in the United States and the State; an affidavit from two (2) witnesses on the petitioner's character and residence; an oath of allegiance to support the Constitution of the United States; a renunciation of allegiance to any foreign power; the date of filing; and the signature of the clerk of the court.

Minor's Petition and Final Oath:

Minor's Papers show the name of the county and court where the papers were filed; the court term; the names of the petitioner, presiding judge and court clerk; the petitioner's nationality; a statement that he arrived in the United States 3 years preceding his arrival at the age of twenty-one and continued to reside therein to the time of making application to be admitted as a citizen; the term of residence in the United States and the state; a declaration of the petitioner's intent to become a citizen of the United States; a renunciation of allegiance to any foreign power; an oath of allegiance to support the Constitution of the United States; an affidavit from two (2) witnesses on the petitioner's character and residence; the date of filing; and the signatures of the petitioner and court clerk

Soldiers Papers:

These second papers admitted persons to citizenship without a prior declaration wherein the person verified that they had enlisted in and served the armed services of the United States and were honorably discharged. Congress enacted this provision beginning in 1862 partially as a recruitment tool and as a reward for foreign-born men who entered active military duty.

Certificate of Naturalization - Third Papers:

Certificates were issued to new citizens upon completion of all citizenship requirements. Prior to 1907, standardized forms were not used, and few courts retained copies of the certificates. Copies that have survived were preprinted forms in bound volumes. As in the cases of declarations of intention and the petitions, the amount of information provided on the certificate may vary greatly from one year to another. At the time of naturalization, petitioners were allowed to change their name, which was documented in the court order. In most cases, the certificate contains little information other than the court, date, and name of the new citizen. In other words, the certificate simply stated that the individual was now a citizen of the United States. Beginning in 1929, naturalization certificates also included a photograph of the new citizen. In some cases, the certificate will provide: name, address, birthplace or nationality, country from which emigrated, birth date or age, personal description, marital status, name of spouse, and date of document. They may contain other information, but the Declaration and Petition are usually the most helpful papers for genealogy researchers.

Colorado Certificate of Citizenship: Created 1867 - 1941 contains name, date, term of court, name of naturalized aliens and their former nationality.

Colorado Certificate of Naturalization (Stubs): After September 1906, the INS issued serially numbered, two-part certificates. One copy went to the new citizen, and the second to the INS. The local courts only retained the certificate stub books from which the forms were separated. The stub books record created 1907 - 1929 contains the new citizen's name: date; name of issuing court, declaration number; volume and petition number; court order date; and the names, ages, and places or residency of spouse and minor children.

Finding Naturalization Papers

The U.S. Naturalization Service (INS) was formed on September 27, 1906, thus the they do not have any naturalization records dated before September 1906. Before 1906, there was often very little data in these records. The federal law of 1906 required that copies of naturalization records be forwarded by the courts to the Immigration and Naturalization Service. To locate pre-1906 naturalization records, or any naturalization records filed with courts, start your research at the National Archives or a state repository. For a list of Naturalization Records on microfilm at the National Archives go to https://eservices.archives.gov/orderonline/start.swe?SWECmd=Start&SWEHo=eservices.archives.gov Pre-1906 Naturalization records may be found at the local county courthouse, state archives, or in the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) if the immigrant was naturalized in a Federal (District) Court. However, Federal courts stopped handling naturalizations in the 1930s. As a general rule, the National Archives does not have naturalization records created in state, local, or county courts. Sometimes the county courts kept duplicate copies of district court naturalization records. Although a state judicial district court may of covered more than one county, a particular county's district naturalization records appear under their own county records. If the naturalization took place in a Federal court, naturalization indexes, declarations of intent, and petitions may be in the NARA regional facility serving the State in which the Federal court is located. Do not be surprised if county court employees tell you that their naturalization records are at "the National Archives" or that their court never conducted naturalizations. Most current court employees are not familiar with the court's older records. It is up to the researcher to determine the location of older court records.

For Colorado naturalizations, a good first place to look for the papers is the "Index Card" files at the Colorado State Archives or the "Naturalization Index Card" database for Colorado being prepared by the Foothills Genealogical Society. These indexes apply to the third papers or certificates for approximately 1876 through 1906. The range of years varies slightly, depending upon the county. The nature of these certificates various greatly, depending upon the county, and often it is only a certificate of naturalization. In general, the naturalization papers for this time period provides only a small amount of genealogical information, most of which is probably on the index card. The card indexes refer to Third Papers only. The cards, themselves, may provide much naturalization information and are especially valuable because they provide the volume and page number where the record can be found. More importantly, they give a clue as to the court location where the Declarations of Intention and Petitions may have been filed. Information provided on the front of the Immigration and Naturalization Service Form N-35 (index card) usually is family name, given name or names, address, certificate number or volume and page, title and location of court, country of birth or allegiance, date of naturalization, and names and addresses of witnesses. If citizenship was not approved, it was noted on back of the cards. Some of the cards have information on the back related to Certificate Cancellation Information (date and court, why canceled, why); name, age, and place of residence of wife and children; other facts of record. This information in the Final Naturalization papers is generally duplicated elsewhere in the filings in earlier volumes, except for early Declarations of Intentions. To find naturalizations records at the Colorado State Archives, one needs to look in their red County Binder books under the naturalization section to find the records location within the Archives record system using the Volume and date of naturalization as a guide. The record may be on microfilm, in ledger books, or paperwork in boxes.

If your ancestor became naturalized, first look for the record in the local (usually county) court that was close to the immigrant's place of residence. Of the more recent naturalizations (for example, 1949-1983), only the petitions are referenced in card indexes. The Declarations of Intention and other recent district volumes each have an alphabetical index at the front of the volume. These volumes are not indexed in any other way. You can also check the National Archives regional facility that covers the immigrants place of residence. For naturalizations that took place after September 27, 1906, a request for a search of naturalization records may be made by form G-639 from the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) (formerly known as the INS) (branch office where the records most likely may be) by downloading Form G-629 at:
http://uscis.gov/graphics/formsfee/forms/files/g-639.pdf

Instructions G-639, Freedom of Information/ Privacy Act Request

Ask for a copy of the Naturalization Files - the “C-Files” for the ancestor. The USCIS holds naturalization certificate files, known as C-Files, for all naturalizations after September 26, 1906. C-Files are duplicate copies of the original naturalization records and should contain at least a copy of the Declaration of Intention (to 1952), Petition for Naturalization, and Certificate of Naturalization. Occasionally, C-Files contain additional documents, or correspondence.

USCIS maintains an index to the C-Files, and can retrieve individual records based on name, date of birth, and place of birth. C-Files from 1906 to 1956 have been microfilmed, and are available via Freedom of Information/Privacy act request to USCIS Headquarters in Washington, D.C. For naturalization records after 1956, Freedom of Information requests should be sent to the appropriate USCIS District Office. If known, include the following information about the naturalized citizen:

Name, birth date and place, approximate date of entry, names of towns where lived, death date and place, names of other persons who may be included in the naturalization process, such as spouse and children.
Include your contact information: name, mailing address, telephone, and e-mail address. The search takes one month to one year to complete. Records created within the past seventy-five years are deemed confidential, i.e., not open to the public and restricted to relatives.

The information can also be requested on a standard INS form that requires a fee.

Some individuals who were born in the United States, gave up their U.S. citizenship for a period of time to live in another country. In February, 1941, the INS began using a form that required people to give the name under which they immigrated. This was especially important for identification of single women who married in the United States. Shortly after World War II, a large number of European born immigrants, Chinese and Japanese immigrants applied for U.S. citizenship. Some of the naturalization papers involve immigrants born in the United States. These people usually lived overseas, often married to a spouse native to the foreign country, and ultimately moved to the United States.

Some naturalization records were "cancelled" and the Document Number reassigned to another applicant. Spoiled records were usually applications which were never completed for some reason, for example, witnesses refused to sign the petition. Attest in the documents means to authenticate by signing to affirm to be true or genuine.

On June 28, 1940, The Alien Registration Act of 1940 (Smith Act) was passed. This act required registration of all aliens in the United States, 14 and older. This included those who filed first papers for naturalization but had not completed the process. Five million aliens registered in the initial registration that took four months. First, if a naturalization has not been found for an immigrant ancestor who was alive in 1940, they might never have been naturalized. Therefore, there will be an alien registration for that ancestor. Second, after the Smith Act went into effect in 1940, there was a flood of immigrants filing for naturalization. Many of these naturalizations were for people who had lived in the United States for 30 or more years. If they were not naturalized by December 26, 1940, there should be an alien registration. Alien registrations, called A-files, substitute for naturalization records.

In the records, references to the country of birth or nationality as Dutch, Holland and the Netherlands are all synonymous. Scandinavia is the name often given to the peninsula of Norway and Sweden. But the term Scandinavia really refers to the countries where Scandinavia people live, usually Denmark, Norway and Sweden, and mistakenly sometimes includes Finland and Iceland. The people of Denmark are commonly referred to as Danes or Danish. Holland and the Netherlands are the same country. Solvenian refers to someone born in Yugoslavia. In the attached index, the country of birth used was usually the name of the country as it existed when the person filed the naturalization papers. Note that because of wars, the boundaries of countries may of changed, and the birth place reflected in the records may be in a different country today. Especially the borders of Austria, Russia and eastern European countries changed greatly during the late 1800s and early 1900s. Most of the individuals in Colorado's pre1950 naturalization records were from Europe, Greece and Russia.

Be aware that when searching for an individual in an electronic database, use as few names as possible. Also the computer usually will only find names with the exact identical spelling. If there is one letter difference between the name you are searching and the name in the database, no record will be found. It is best to search for the surname only or the exact birth date only, i.e. items that you have a high confidence that the information is accurate. When searching databases, search alone on the surname with spelling variations and search on the first name alone with spelling variations also. Try several different name spelling variations. aka designates "also known as". Polish, Russian and Greek immigrants often used their birth name on passenger lists, but changed their names to shorter and more common names as residents of the United States, for example Johanson to Johnson and Svensson to Swanson. Nearly all immigrants from Greece changed their names upon entering the United States. Many also simplified their first names; for example Maria was changed to Mary, Heinrich was changed to Henry, Josef was changed to Joseph, Wilhelm was changed to William, Franz was changed to Frank, Johannes was changed to John, Alois was changed to Louis, Per was changed to Peter, etc. Some English names have an extra "e" on the end, for example Browne and Osborne. When they immigrated they would drop the extra "e". Ship passenger lists will not reflect their Americanized names. Names such as Van Dyke, Di Jiro and De Angelo have been spelled as VanDyke, DiJiro and DeAngelo (no spaces) in the index. Nuns are listed both under their birth name and their christened name such as Sister xxxxxx. The word "nee" references a women's maiden name. Also O.S.B. designates the Order of Saint Benedict.

The indexes at the front of the volumes are the names of the applicants at the time of application. There were two opportunities for immigrants to change their name: 1. Upon arrival at the U.S. port of call and 2. Upon filing their naturalization paperwork beginning about the 1930s and becoming citizens of the United States. Most applicants upon filing their naturalization paperwork did not request a name change. When the applicant requested that their name be changed upon naturalization, this requested new name is not reflected in the volume index. This latter name change makes it difficult to trace the person in the U.S. Census. The immigrants of this time period were very determined to assimilate and not stand out in American society. They also worked hard at learning the English language.

Naturalization records are the best way for tracing your foreign born ancestor from the U.S. to overseas. The naturalization papers are more accurate than obituaries because they were filled out by your foreign born ancestor themselves, often at a young age when their mind and memory was good. Knowing the name your ancestor used prior to arrival in the U.S. also aids in finding your ancestor's family on passenger lists and in overseas records.

Colorado U.S. District Court Records 1877-1952

Many of the people naturalized in Colorado came from Europe and Russia. The percent naturalized from the more common countries were:

Russia	13.2%
Italy	12%
Germany	9.0%
Sweden	6.2%
Austria	5.8%
Poland	5.7%
England	5.0%
Canada	4.2%
Greece	4.2%
Ireland	3.7%
Other	31.2%

Assyria is modern day Iraq. Asia Minor is modern day Turkey.

During the later stages of the 19th century, large numbers of Russians emigrated to the United States. The main reason was the persecution of the Jewish community in southern Russia that followed the assassination of Alexander II in 1881. Basic rights were taken away from many ethnic groups within the country, especially the Jews. Jews were forced to move to regions of western Russia and eastern Poland, but many of these Russians later emigrated to the U.S. Research suggests that over half of the immigrants settled in New York and Pennsylvania. Most were unskilled and were forced to accept low-paid jobs in factories and mines.

A large group of skilled Jewish Russian laborers came to America after the Bolshevik revolution in 1917. Most of these immigrants settled in New York City's lower east side, an area which is still dominated by Jews. This wave of immigrations was followed by another in the wake of World War II. These people, who feared their nation after the holocaust, had no problems assimilating into society. Most of them were skilled laborers, and America needed more workers of this kind after the war.

In 1850, less than 4,000 Italians were reportedly in the U.S. However, in 1880, merely four years after a large influx of Italian immigrants occurred, the population skyrocketed to 44,000, and by 1900 484,027. From 1880 to 1900, Southern Italian immigrants became the predominant Italian immigrant. In the U.S. where the abundance of cheap land could no longer be found, the mostly agricultural Italians from Italy became mostly urban workers. They often became fishermen, shoemakers, waiters, fruit sellers, and tradesmen. However, the unskilled laborers worked in mines and on construction jobs.

In the 1800s, Germans poured into the U.S. Modernization and population growth forced many Germans from their respective family businesses. Also, modernization made immigrating more convenient and faster with inventions such as the steam boat and steam train. Many Germans took long, complicated, but cheap routes though Great Britain by way of train and boat to get to the United States. In the U.S., most Germans lived in the countryside. Only about two fifths lived in cities larger than 25,000 people. In 1870, German-born farmers made up one third of the agricultural industry. Large numbers of German farmers could be bound in the Midwest and in Texas. Most German immigrants were Protestants, with Lutheranism by far the most common denomination.

Swedish immigration to the United States reached a peak in 1896, and it was in this year that the Vasa Order of America, a Swedish-American fraternal organization, was founded to help immigrants, who often lacked an adequate network of social services. In the year 1900, Chicago was the city with the second highest number of Swedes after Stockholm, the capital of Sweden. Minnesota acquired the most Swedes as a percentage of their population, but the states of Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska and Illinois also acquired Swedish emigrants.

Altogether, almost 3.5 million Irishmen entered the U.S. between 1820 and 1880. The first generations worked largely at unskilled and semiskilled occupations, but their children found themselves working at increasingly skilled trades. By 1900, when Irish American men made up about a thirteenth of the male labor force, they were almost a third of the plumbers, steamfitters, and boilermakers. Most Colorado's Irish immigrants worked in mining and railroad work.

Declarations of Intentions (DI):
The declarations of Intention in Denver District Court Volume 1 (beginning with April 17, 1877 filing dates) lists only the applicant's name, the name of the clerk of the court, the name and title of the head of state the applicant renounced allegiance to, and the date of the declaration. Volumes 2 through 34 (up to January 14, 1952 filing dates) list the applicant's name, age, occupation, physical description, place of birth, previous residence, intended place of residence in the United States, point of departure, date and port of arrival, manner of arrival, and name of the transporting ship or railroad. The declarations of intention filed after the late1920s also include the name of the applicant's spouse and name, date and place of birth, and residence of their children. Also, if the applicant used a different name at the port of entry, this name is also reflected in the record. Many of the 1930s and later declarations of intentions include a photo of the applicant with males usually dressed in a suit coat and tie. Most of the applicants were males.

The “Declaration of Intentions” filed in Denver District Federal Court during the period April 17, 1877 to December 3, 1929, have been indexed, see the Foothills Genealogical Society web site on-line database Index to Naturalization Declaration of Intentions file, Denver District Federal Court”:
http://www.rootsweb.com/~cofgs/naturalizations_1877_1929/start.htm

Pueblo District Court declarations of intention are in volumes 1 through 18, October 1, 1906 through May 25, 1949 filing dates.

Naturalization Dockets (ND):
The naturalization docket is a chronological record of actions taken by an applicant to meet the requirements to become a naturalized citizen. Each docket lists the name and address of the applicant, the declaration of intention number, and, if the proceedings have been completed, the petition and certificate number and names of witnesses. Following this are a record of proceedings: the dates of the filing of the declaration of intention, the petition for naturalization, the submission of facts for the proceedings, and, if applicable the issuance of the certificate.

Petition and Record (PN):
The petition for naturalization, the first part of the form, lists the applicant’s name, place of residence, occupation, birth date and birthplace, place and date of emigration, port of entry into the United States, and, if applicable, the name of the vessel. Also recorded are the date and place where the applicant’s declaration of intention was made, the dates of residency in the United States, and the name of the sovereign or head of the country to whom the applicant formerly swore allegiance. If the applicant was married, the spouse’s name, date and place of birth, and present residence are given. The name, date and place of birth, and current address of any children are listed. Also if the applicant used a different name at the port of entry, this name is also reflected in the “Certificate of Arrival - For Naturalization Purposes“ record. These “Certificate of Arrival’s “became a part of the petition paperwork in the 1910s.

The affidavits of petitioner and witnesses, the second part, record the names, occupations and addresses of two witnesses who could testify that the petitioner had resided continuously in the United States for at least 5 years and that he had conducted himself as a person of good moral character. The witnesses signed these affidavits before the clerk of the court.

The oath of allegiance, the third part, is a sworn statement that the petitioner renounces all foreign allegiances and will support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States. Usually listed are the name and title of the sovereign or head of state to whom the petitioner formerly swore allegiance and the date the oath was taken.

The order of the court admitting the petitioner, the last part of the petition, is signed by the judge. It records the date the petitioner was granted citizenship. If the judge was not satisfied that the applicant had fulfilled all requirements for naturalization, he signed an order to continue or deny the petition. This order lists the date for continuance or the reason for denial of the petition. Information pertaining to any petitioner’s request to have his or her name changed is also recorded here.

Soldiers’ Petition and Record (SP):
This series (June 8, 1918 through May 3, 1928 filing dates) consists of petitions for naturalization filed by persons who were or had been in active military service. These petitions for naturalization are recorded on the same form used for regular applicants plus an attached statement of military service. The statement of military service lists the date the applicant entered active service, the date of his separation, his grade at separation, the type of separation, and the reason and authority for his separation. A copy of the declaration of Intention is also attached to some of the petitions.

Miscellaneous Records Relating to Naturalization, 1883-1922 (MD):
Many of the folders include a copy of the declaration of intention and petition for naturalization. The accompanying miscellaneous records are primarily correspondence between officials of the courts and the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization concerning the case of an applicant. Included are copies of the dispositions of witnesses, reports relating to investigations, and motions to dismiss or postpone a petition.

An additional index to the Declaration of Intention papers for Arapahoe county, can be found on microfilms GR709 and GR710. in a blue binder at the Archives Research room or Denver Public Library Call No. G929.378883 D357. The date range is from 1880-1906. The data that was captured is Book, Page, Surname, Given Name, Nativity, and date filed. The index was done in 1989 by the Colorado Genealogical Society, Repatriations are cases where the one is sent back to one’s own country or to their original place of citizenship, i.e. one who has lost their U.S. citizenship since marriage to an alien. However, by making an application to take an oath of allegiance to the U.S. they could retain their citizenship. Attest means to certify by signature or oath.

Most of the documents were handwritten and it was hard to distinguish between the letters a and o, F and T, L and T, and e and i. aka designates “also known as”, i.e., another name used by the applicant. The word “nee” designates the female spouse’s maiden name before marriage. “Per” is a Scandinavian / Nordic masculine first name.
