On May 18, 1917, during World War I the Selective Service Act was passed authorizing the President to increase temporarily the military armed forces by the process of selecting men for induction into the military service. In 1917 and 1918, approximately 24 million men, (98% of men present in America), born between 1873 and 1900 completed draft registration cards. The selective service boards were responsible for registering men, classifying them, taking into consideration needs for manpower in certain industries and in agriculture, as well as certain special family situations of the registrants; handling any appeals of these classifications; determining the medical fitness of individual registrants; determining the order in which registrants would be called; calling registrants; and placing them on trains to training centers. Local boards were established for each county or similar subdivision in each state, and for each 30,000 persons (approximately) in each city or county with a population over 30,000.

During World War I there were three registrations. The first, on June 5, 1917, was for all men between the ages of 21 and 31. These men were born between 1886 - 1896. They answered a form containing twelve questions including order and serial numbers (assigned by the Selective Service System), full name, date and place of birth, race, citizenship, occupation, personal description, and signature.

The second registration, on June 5, 1918, registered those who attained age 21 after June 5, 1917. These men were born between 1896 - 1897. (A supplemental registration was held on August 24, 1918, for those becoming 21 years old after June 5, 1918. This was included in the second registration.) The form had ten questions including name, date of birth, birthplace, citizenship and father's birthplace.

The third registration was held on September 12, 1918, for men age 18 through 45. These men were born 1872 - 1886 and 1897 - 1900. They answered a twenty question form which included name, age in years, date of birth - not birthplace, citizenship, and address of nearest kin. After the signing of the armistice on November 11, 1918, the activities of the Selective Service System were rapidly curtailed. On March 31, 1919, all local, district, and medical advisory boards were closed.

For Colorado, the registration cards are on 40 rolls of microfilm (v.1 through v.40), Denver Public Library microfilm catalog number G973.91, W893co. The draft registration cards are arranged alphabetically by county or city. Within the county or city, names are listed usually alphabetically. Denver City/County consisted of nine draft boards (#1 through #9). There is also a separate microfilm of Indians, prisoners, insane, in hospital, and late registrants (G973.91, W893misc, v.2) which the Denver Public Library also has.

The information included on each registration differs somewhat but the general information shown often includes order and serial numbers, full name, address, age, date and place of birth, father's birthplace, race, citizenship, occupation, employers name and city, nearest relative's name and address, personal description (general height and build, eye and hair color), disabilities, and signature. It is important to note that not all of the men who registered for the draft actually served in the military and not all men who served in the military registered for the draft. As these cards are not military service records, they contain no information about an individual's military service. After the signing of the armistice of November 11, 1918, the activities of the Selective Service System was rapidly curtailed. On March 31, 1919, all local boards were closed.

It should be noted that only a small percentage of these men were ever inducted into the military. In addition, the information provided was much more complete and reliable than census information because the registrant was the person providing the information. The cards also serve as substitute for birth records since many of the men were born before birth registration began in many states. Occasionally there were conflicts in the birth year and the age given, and the year of birth should be confirmed by Social Security, military, birth certificates, or bible records. Many of the registrants reflect that they were born in Austria which was a very large European country prior to World War I, but was divided up into other countries after World War I. Moreover, these cards are not military service records. They contain no information about an individual's military service.

The registration process began well in advance of the official registration dates of June 5, 1917, June 5, 1918, and September 12, 1918, but the ages given were the age projected for the official registration date. Occasionally the registrant died before the official registration date, but still has a card on file.

Aliens were required to register but were not subject to induction into the American military. Persons already in the military did not register. Recent Italian emigrants wrote their last names first, resulting in some cards being filed under first names. Cards of Hispanics may be filed under their mother's maiden name surname if the registrant gave both parents surnames. Also, men who resided in British territories sometimes listed themselves simply as British citizens without noting their origin in Canada, Scotland, Ireland, etc. Illiterate men were unable to spell their names and birth location, so researchers should be quite flexible, in searching for the spelling of names of illiterate men.

On the microfilm, the names are sorted in general in alphabetical order. However, the names are sometimes in rough alphabetical order (be flexible!) within each county and occasionally names are completely out of order within a letter group. Usually the cards are filled out with script writing, and especially the letters "a" and "o", "g" and "z", "n" and "u", "h" and "k", "r" and "s", and "e" and "i" can easily be mistaken for each other. The following fields of information are in the index below: full name, date (day/month/year) and place of birth, county/city of registration-draft board number, and microfilm volume number. Half of the registrations did not request the birth place. In the index the state of birth is not given for Colorado, i.e., only the city is given. Also "ca" preceding the year designates about. Film number 2a is Reference 6 below.
