

Fire Insurance Map Inventory of Colorado

Introduction

Fire insurance maps share a sole purpose – to determine how risky it is to issue fire insurance for a particular building – and this purpose is reflected in the often unique information shown on them. While most people associate fire insurance maps in Colorado with the Sanborn Map Company, this inventory includes any fire insurance maps produced within the state. Sanborn maps were expensive to subscribe to for insurance agents, and as these agents sought more affordable ways to assess risk, others tried their hand at the map-making task. Mountain States Inspection Bureau was one of the more prolific, though independent agents created some maps as well. While lacking the intense level of detail baked into Sanborn maps, these third-party products apparently captured sufficient information to reasonably calculate risk of fire damage.

Another consideration in the formatting of these maps is their orientation. To ensure that sheets stay roughly the same size, many maps are oriented with north somewhere besides 'up'. Watch for the compass rose on each map to avoid disorientation.

In Colorado, the University of Colorado-Boulder was selected by the Library of Congress to receive a complete duplicate set of Sanborn maps for the state. CU-Boulder's map set, like the Library of Congress, are original, non-updated maps, and are approximately 70% digitized. Maps at other institutions are from other sources and almost universally will have some level of updating and paste-overs added over time. The updating process for fire insurance maps obscures and often destroys the original content of the underlying map.

Notes on the major institutional collections listed in this inventory

- Library of Congress: As the copyrighting agency in the United States, the Library of Congress has required a mandatory deposit for any intellectual property (books, music, etc.) for which copyright is requested. Sanborn Map Company deposited the two required copies here. These are not updated, and are in their original form. They have since digitized all Sanborn maps that were produced that fell into the public domain.

- University of Colorado (Boulder): At some point, the Library of Congress picked a single institution in each state to receive their non-updated second copyright copy. For Colorado, they selected the University of Colorado at Boulder. Before the Library of Congress began digitizing its maps, the university digitized many of its own. While technically different copies, their scans will therefore look similar. The University of Colorado provides the most convenient place for Coloradans to see all Colorado Sanborn maps in person in their original print form.
- Denver Public Library: Most of the fire insurance maps at Denver Public Library were received from the Colorado Real Estate Insurance company as a donation. This set is a combination of updated Sanborn maps and more hand-drawn maps from a combination of independent insurance agents as well as the Mountain States Inspection Bureau. In many cases, the only fire insurance maps available for many small towns fall into this latter category. In most cases, Denver Public Library carries only a single iteration of fire insurance maps coverage for any particular town. The notable exception is Denver, for which the library carries multiple editions and updates from 1887 into the 1970s. DPL carries few if any non-updated fire insurance maps.

Scope

This geographical survey of fire insurance maps of Colorado is limited in scope to:

- Geographic coverage for Colorado locations only, including almost 300 cities, towns, and other settlements
- Only holding institutions physically located in Colorado, and the Library of Congress, are listed in the inventory
- Only original color print (non-photocopy) and digital versions are listed in the inventory

Some libraries carry Sanborn maps on a 1983 microfilm dating from a 1981 inventory by the Library of Congress (LC). These are quite valuable to have and in many cases is the only locally available version. A list of institutions known to hold the microfilm is given later in this preface.

Most of the maps in this inventory were produced by Sanborn Map Company, sometimes known as the Sanborn-Perris Map Company. Be sure to use the aids created by the Library of Congress to make sure you're getting the most out of the map in front of you.

As the Copyright Depository agency for the United States, the Library of Congress received original, pre-updated, maps from Sanborn. Local libraries tend to have updated office-copy maps received from local insurance agencies over the decades. This variation in content, while making inventories and descriptions complicated, also provides improved coverage over more time periods for the same area, especially when the date of the most recent update can be determined. Whether or not this update date is available forms part of this inventory.

Local insurance organizations and companies produced maps for Colorado as well, and the source is noted where available. Note that these maps were often not nearly as detailed or polished as Sanborn's editions, though were also much more affordable. When you see a map not produced by Sanborn, be aware that the quality of the map you see will often not be nearly as high or provide as complete a coverage of a town.

On the plus side, many Colorado towns were never mapped by Sanborn, so these locally produced maps provide a cartographic resource for some towns that would not otherwise be available.

Organization of the Inventory

The inventory is listed by name of City, and then by date of original publication. A line is created for each copy of a map at each institution since no two Sanborn maps are the same once updates begin to be applied. Each insurance agent would make annotations, whether by hand or by adding paste-overs, on their office's copy. For this reason, when a digital copy is available, the URL for digital images from that institution is linked using the name of the holding institution.

Notes on the Inventory's Data Fields

Field	Definition	Example
City	Name of primary incorporated or unincorporated populated place shown on map. Any populated place that has fire insurance coverage should have an entry.	Dillon
Base year	Year map edition was first published, prior to any updates	1886
Update	Year of latest update to the base year for the map the holding institution owns	1932
Creator	Name of company, organization, or person that created the map. In some cases the creator isn't identified.	Sanborn Map Company

Sheets	Where known, this is the number of map sections issued to cover the City listed. The terms 'pages' and 'sheets' are sometimes used interchangeably, but this field refers specifically to the number of numbered map sections issued. In some cases, a single numbered "sheet" was issued as a 'double-wide' map section.	7 (meaning map is complete in 7 sections)
Institution	Name of the library, museum, or university that holds an original print copy of the map. If the library also hosts digital images made from their insurance maps, the name of the institution will contain a link to the digital version.	Denver Public Library or CU-Boulder
Notes	Additional information on that institution's specific copy, oddities surrounding the map itself, etc.	Color. See under Cripple Creek, sh.25  [in this case, the town listed, Elkton, was not published on its own, but rather can be found by looking at the Cripple Creek maps, sheet 25, for that year]

Geographic Coverage for each City

Cities and towns are not created equal, and Colorado in the late 19th century could be chaotic with mining towns built and abandoned in the space of just a few years.

Sometimes a 'City' published by Sanborn would include smaller nearby settlements. If adjacent they might appear simply as a special notation on a particular map section. If, for example, a settlement is in the next valley over, they might get an entire sheet or part of a sheet dedicated to that area. These extra areas are listed in the Notes field, with a special entry under the name of the settlements elsewhere in the inventory.

While not common, sometimes a town will merely be part of the coverage for a larger City one year, only to get a dedicated map all to itself a few years later. And vice versa, especially when a town's mine plays out and only a relatively few people remain.

To provide as complete a list as possible for every town covered by Colorado fire insurance maps, when a town is mapped by sheets that fall under another town's name, the smaller town is listed as a cross-reference. Check the Notes column for more information on how to locate the map(s) for the smaller town for those years. If the specific sheet number for the smaller town is known, that information will be placed in the Notes field.

The task of locating the right map for Denver was made much easier when the Library of Congress added Denver to their Sanborn Atlas Volume Finder tool.

Completeness

While this inventory is intended to be as complete as possible within the scope listed above, it is undoubtedly not complete. Some other resources to check include:

- Phil Hoehn's union list of Colorado fire insurance maps (2014)
  - With assistance from Bill Hunt and Evelyn L. Woodruff. Colorado section enhanced by Laura Wright (CU-Boulder)
- OCLC's Worldcat to search for specific maps. You may need to experiment trying different searches using keywords like 'fire insurance', 'sanborn', and a particular town.
- Union list of Sanborn fire insurance maps held by institutions in the United States and Canada, by Phil Hoehn, 1976-1977. While the list is dated, given how few fire insurance maps were published after this compilation it still holds value. Confirm with the holding institution that they still own the map.
  - Volume 1 (Alabama to Missouri) WAML Occasional papers, no.2
  - Volume 2 (Montana to Wyoming, Canada, Mexico) WAML Occasional papers, no.3
- ProQuest's Digital Sanborn Maps, 1867-1970. Check with your local library to see if you have access to this database. These are black-and-white editions based on the Library of Congress holdings.

Digital Copies

As part of a multi-year project, the Library of Congress digitized thousands of its vast Sanborn map collection. In recognition of U.S. copyright law and their applicability to Sanborn maps, they do not digitize maps until they pass into public domain. Where a digital copy of a particular map or map set is available a link is added to the holding institution's name.

Microfilm

When a digital version isn't available, and a printed copy is not in your area, your local library may still hold the microfilm version. Note that both the ProQuest database and microfilm (from which the database is derived) will not contain the color image, and will be at a lower resolution, but will still show much information. The online database images were created from the 1983 microfilm and both include years not currently online.

Below is an example of a block in Colorado Springs from 1888 for comparison.
