The organizational records of the Urban League of Denver are divided into four series. They include papers, newspaper articles and marketing materials, photographs, and scrapbooks. The first series, papers, consists of correspondence, memos, reports, invitations, cards, notes, and general records. They are then divided into three subseries: correspondence, invitations, and notes. They are arranged chronologically.

The second series, newspaper articles and marketing materials, consists of newspaper articles, miscellaneous publications, brochures, booklets, pamphlets, and programs. They are arranged alphabetically and then chronologically.

The third series, photographs, is arranged chronologically and includes many photographs of the club, individual people and events. The fourth series, scrapbooks, consists of two scrapbooks. The first includes many photographs and articles. It is entitled "Facets of Negro Culture." An unknown compiler placed many annotations in the "Facets of Negro Culture" scrapbook. The second scrapbook is smaller in size and contains only newspaper articles from the 1940s-1950s.
